

Real Men, Real Talk

Transforming young men into leaders of social change in Papua New Guinea

Brought to you by Warrior Culture with support from the U.S. Embassy in Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea

Application Deadline: June 5th 2015

About this program

Real Men, Real Talk is a leadership program designed to transform young men into leaders of social change in Papua New Guinea. The program will identify and then help develop and or strengthen leadership skills for a selected group of young men who want to take on an active and dynamic role in shaping the future of this nation. Real Men, Real Talk will impart to course participants transformational knowledge, skills and experience that will empower them to positively and powerfully impact society in the areas of family violence advocacy and gender equality, while steering them to greater self-acceptance, self-control and self-empowerment.

By the end of this program, participants should know how to position themselves as leaders whilst taking massive change-maker action to influence others. The program will be conducted through 10 training workshops (modules) on selected Saturdays in Port Moresby (refer to program dates below).
